compensation and personal injury arenas," says co-founder Angelo R. Simone. "Rhode Islanders know there is no shortage of lawyers in this state, especially personal injury or workers' compensation lawyers," says co-founder Shelagh R. McCahey. "Unfortunately, there isn't a correlation between lawyer ads and excellent results," she adds. "Although many don't like to admit it, the moment your opponent learns who your lawyer is, can and should be a powerful one. It should send a message," says Angelo Simone. "In many ways, this firm was founded on that moment."

Simone & McCahey LLP represent injured workers and the families of those killed in tragic workplace fatalities. They also represent those seriously injured in auto crashes, falls, and other catastrophic injuries, including wrongful death and malpractice. When Simone & McCahey LLP accepts a new client, they immediately begin planning and executing a strategy with one simple goal: to win and win big.

Angelo Simone and Shelagh McCahey left well-respected law firms and joined forces in 2017, founding a law firm with one mission: getting the best results possible for workers' compensation and personal injury clients. In just two short years, the duo has delivered stunning results and have quickly become known as one of the premier legal teams in the areas of workers' compensation and personal injury.

Simone & McCahey LLP tends to be selective about what cases they take on and has a fiercely loyal client following. It's not hard to see why. The duo is very hands-on, doing everything on their cases themselves. They prepare their clients for all possibilities and guide them with competence that eases their fears and concerns. The two seem to spare no effort or expense if it means giving their client the advantage. "We wanted a firm where we do the little extra things we know, from experience, most lawyers wouldn't do. We want to go that extra mile," says Shelagh McCahey. Not surprisingly, their online client reviews are gleaming.

"Our firm is the result of countless late-night conversations about what truly drives great results, and what 'excellence' really looks like in the workers'
